— PRESIDENT BILL CLINTON, CLINTON GLOBAL INITIATIVE 2024 ANNUAL MEETING

PUTTING PEOPLE FIRST

A LETTER FROM PRESIDENT BILL CLINTON, SECRETARY HILLARY RODHAM CLINTON, AND DR. CHELSEA CLINTON

Over the past several months, we've spent a lot of time thinking about the work ahead and what's next. Today's unprecedented challenges demand an unprecedented response and we are committed to ensuring that this work continues.

For more than two decades, the Clinton Foundation has aspired to build a world where everyone has the opportunity to create better tomorrows for themselves, their families, and their communities.

Our vision for the Foundation's future includes the expansion and revitalization of the Clinton Presidential Center in Little Rock and the growth of our programming to accelerate solutions on today's most pressing issues through the Clinton Global Initiative (CGI).

As we share in this report, in 2024 we saw how bringing together diverse and often unlikely partners from business, government, and civil society can be a practical strategy for delivering outsized impact across the United States and around the world:

■ The Clinton Global Initiative continued to work with partners to identify, amplify, test, and scale what's working around the globe — targeted solutions that can make a meaningful difference where it matters most. Last year's Annual Meeting resulted in the launch of more than 175 new Commitments to Action, taking on climate, health, the economy, women's rights, and humanitarian efforts worldwide. As we look ahead to mark CGI's 20th anniversary in September, the CGI model has changed the way the world looks at philanthropy and social good. Most importantly, while the thousands of new projects and programs launched through CGI have positively impacted 500 million lives around the world, they have also provided a powerful roadmap for how we will continue to address the world's greatest global challenges today, tomorrow, and far into the future.

■ The Clinton Presidential Center celebrated its 20th anniversary, spending the year focused on how leadership, citizenship, and service are noble and important pathways for civic participation. Looking to the future, we know the Clinton Center is uniquely positioned to bring people together through innovative bipartisan programs and partnerships that will help support the next generation of public servants. We are committed to expanding and revitalizing the Center to serve as an institute for learning, civic engagement, and inspiration for generations to come. We're also proud to share that the Little Rock Regional Chamber of Commerce reported that the Clinton Center has catalyzed nearly $4.9 billion in economic impact for the Little Rock region — a figure that is only expected to grow as we solidify plans in the years ahead.

■ The Presidential Leadership Scholars is marking its 10th year as a first-of-its-kind, bipartisan program. Through the years, more than 530 American leaders from all walks of life and at pivotal points in their careers have worked together, across ideological divides, to find common ground and create solutions for the challenges we face. In 2024, 60 new Scholars joined the program's ninth cohort. Because of the program's success bridging divides among us, we created a leadership series for high school students modeled on the Presidential Leadership Scholars program.

■ Too Small to Fail celebrated its 10th year of impact, continuing to innovate in the field of early childhood development. Together with partners, they started new work with Hollywood to raise consumer awareness on the impacts of climate change on children's health, and expanded their "Talking is Teaching: Talk, Read, Sing" early literacy campaign across Pennsylvania.

■ The Overdose Response Network continued to drive solutions in the fight against the U.S. overdose crisis. Since launching, the network has distributed 890,000 doses of naloxone, installed 3,500 Overdose Aid Kits in churches, schools, convenience stores, and community groups, and has trained 280 faith leaders to support recovery efforts in their communities.

■ The Clinton Health Access Initiative has reached more than 29 million people in 125 countries with lifesaving medications, diagnostics, vaccines, and other health tools. In 2024, CHAI's lifesaving work continued to bring innovative, data-driven solutions to some of the world's toughest health challenges — including screening one million women for cervical cancer, helping Cambodia achieve their first-ever month with zero reported cases of malaria, and establishing 400 new medical oxygen plants across nine countries.

■ The Alliance for a Healthier Generation, a nonprofit children's health organization founded by the Clinton Foundation and the American Heart Association, continues to work with thousands of U.S. schools and youth-serving organizations to help children lead healthier lives. To date, 31.3 million children are benefiting from increased access to nutritious foods, high-quality physical activity, improved social-emotional skills, and tobacco-free environments.

The gaps between what the public sector can provide and what the private sector can produce seem to be growing bigger each and every day. The work we do here will continue to help fill those gaps. Whether we're launching targeted initiatives that test new solutions or expanding proven programs that have transformed millions of lives, we must work together to keep putting people first and building a better future.

Of course none of this impact would be possible without the extraordinary engagement of our community of partners, including generous support from philanthropic institutions, private enterprise, and grassroots supporters.

As always, we thank you for being a part of this work.

CLINTON GLOBAL INITIATIVE MAINTAINS FOCUS ON WHAT'S WORKING

UPDATE FROM GREG MILNE, CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER OF THE CLINTON GLOBAL INITIATIVE

In 2024, we spent the year focused on identifying what's working around the globe — stories of persistence, innovation, and the targeted solutions driven by passionate Clinton Global Initiative (CGI) commitment-makers and partners.

We brought together leaders from all corners of the globe — from Bulgaria to the Bahamas, Dubai to Detroit — and asked them how CGI could support their work, bring new partners to the table, and create new opportunities for scale. In September, we held our Annual Meeting in New York City, where more than 3,000 participants from over 110 countries launched 175 new CGI Commitments to Action addressing the world's most pressing challenges.

When these commitments are fully funded and implemented, they will impact millions of people worldwide. Each commitment is a specific, new, and measurable program that, among other outcomes, will create jobs and expand economic opportunities, provide better delivery of quality health care, increase access to humanitarian aid, tackle the impacts of climate change, protect the power of truth and ideas through press freedom, increase women and girls' equality, and so much more.

In the year ahead, we'll mark CGI's 20th year of turning ideas into action. When it initially launched, CGI was the first time leaders from a broad cross-section of society came together to not just talk about the pressing issues we face, but to actually commit to take action and do something about them. Fast forward 20 years and our model has changed the way the world looks at philanthropy while making a positive impact in the lives of more than 500 million people around the world.

As global challenges grow increasingly urgent, we're grateful for, and will need your partnership and engagement, to continue this important work. In return, we promise we'll be by your side as we all navigate the coming days, weeks, months, and years ahead.

What Worked in 2024

In 2024, we saw the collective efforts of 175 CGI Commitments to Action drive change worldwide. From climate resilience projects reaching 100 countries, to economic opportunities that created nearly 3 million jobs, the progress is undeniable. With billions of dollars invested and millions of lives impacted, these results continue to inspire our work, proving what can be achieved when we take action together.

Harnessing Innovation and Partnership to Transform Health Care

CGI's health equity experts partnered with commitment-makers to integrate rapid technological and AI innovations for expanding access to and enhancing efficiency in global health care. Commitments focused on mental health financing, fortifying medical oxygen supply chains in emerging markets, and bridging climate-health data to improve prevention, diagnosis, and treatment. Public-private partnerships amplified collaboration, channeling resources to advance equitable health care and improve outcomes for communities worldwide.

Building a Global Economy That Works for Everybody

The economic inclusion team worked with CGI commitment-makers to accelerate innovative solutions to broaden educational and economic opportunities, including through catalytic capital, employment-driven national service programs, generative AI and other technologies, workplace financial empowerment, and affordable housing financing. When fully funded and implemented, these commitments will span five continents, create nearly 3 million jobs, provide education to 2 million students, and secure $400 million for communities that are historically under-resourced.

Through its CGI Commitment to Action, the Mayor's Office of Barranquilla, Colombia provides social, cultural, productive, and urban integration to migrants, returnees, and refugees in the community.

CGI commitment-maker Superhumans Center of Ukraine provides psychological support, prosthetics, rehabilitation, and social integration for people affected by war.

Humanitarian Response Team Tackles Sudan Crisis

CGI actively engaged with commitment-makers in crisis-stricken regions such as Sudan, Ukraine, and Haiti, where unique challenges required creative partnership and collaboration. One approach CGI took in Sudan was emphasizing a coalition mindset for global donors, illustrating how to localize funding and strengthen community-led efforts — this strategy proved effective and highlighted mutual aid's potential to address future disasters and conflicts. The humanitarian response team continued its work through the Ukraine Action Network, supporting immediate relief efforts and laying the groundwork for Ukraine's long-term post-war recovery, and the Haiti Action Network, fostering grassroots and multilateral partnerships to enhance Haiti's resilience amid political instability and extreme weather threats.

Igniting Global Investment in Climate Resilience

The climate resilience team built powerful collaborations of over 30 commitment-makers. These commitments — from governments and philanthropies to NGOs, corporations, and small businesses — will drive significant progress in more than 100 countries on climate mitigation and adaptation in vital areas like energy modernization and decarbonization, regenerative agriculture and food security, and at the intersection of climate action and gender equality.

Integrating Women & Girls' Equality Across All Practices and Programs

CGI integrated and prioritized gender across other issue areas, with a particular focus on climate action, women's health, economic advancement, and safety. Projects unlocked innovative partnerships that connected conservation efforts, sustainable livelihoods, and reproductive health. Stakeholders also collaborated to tackle threats and advance opportunities that technology poses to women's safety, political participation, and mental health, emphasizing the importance of cross-sector partnerships in advancing gender equality.

Cultivating Emerging Leaders and Fostering Social Innovation Ecosystems

CGI remained dedicated to lifting entrepreneurs and emerging leaders through its platform. CGI University shifted its focus to build out programming and year-round engagement opportunities through CGI's Annual Meeting and Action Network platforms — elevating youth voices and providing more meaningful connections to changemakers. CGI Greenhouse, which supports impact enterprises ready to scale, achieved a notable outcome: 25% of participants received direct investments because of their CGI connections. In addition, CGI launched the CGI Creators Experience to engage content creators and influencers to more deeply reach and engage younger audiences in making complex issues accessible and actionable.

CGI commitment-maker Smallholder Farmers Alliance provides tools and training for local farmers to grow regenerative cotton to help reforest Haiti.

Overdose Response Network Distributes Life-Saving Naloxone and Overdose Aid Kits

The Overdose Response Network distributed 300 new Overdose Aid Kits to schools, churches, and community groups, training 60 faith leaders to help their communities combat addiction and overdose. Nearly 70,000 doses of naloxone were shared at no cost through a partnership with Direct Relief. Since its inception, the network has installed 3,500 kits, distributed 890,000 doses of naloxone, and empowered 280 faith leaders to support those in recovery nationwide.

Too Small to Fail Continues to Innovate Early Learning in State Campaigns and Hollywood

Too Small to Fail launched a groundbreaking statewide early literacy campaign in Pennsylvania in partnership with the Barbara Bush Foundation for Family Literacy and the United Way of Pennsylvania. The program will pilot with United Ways across the state, building upon and adapting early learning strategies to meet families where they are in their local communities. They also continued to innovate and lead in the field of early childhood development — exploring the impacts of climate change on children's healthy development and bringing new research and best practices for raising awareness on these issues to Hollywood.

Through its CGI Commitment to Action, UNICEF USA launched Every Girl to accelerate investments in women and girls programs, including the UNICEF-supported digital skills training program, Skills4Girls, in Jordan.

20 YEARS OF LEADERSHIP AT THE CLINTON PRESIDENTIAL CENTER

UPDATE FROM STEPHANIE STREETT, CLINTON FOUNDATION EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Throughout 2024, the Clinton Presidential Center celebrated its 20th anniversary. The theme — leadership, citizenship, and service — reflected both the Clinton Center’s history of impact and our ambitious aspirations for the future.

Over the last two decades, with many integral partners, we endeavored to strengthen the inclusive economic, social, and cultural fabric of Central Arkansas while bridging divides and building community. A report commissioned by the Little Rock Regional Chamber of Commerce found the Clinton Center contributed significantly through its direct investment and catalytic effect on private development.

The Clinton Center is uniquely positioned to address current challenges to American civic health that are due, in part, to reduced emphasis on civics education, extreme polarization, and low voter participation. In 2024, we sharpened the focus of our educational and public programming to promote civics education, civic leadership, and civic engagement.

Through our nonpartisan leadership programs, Presidential Leadership Scholars, and the Student Presidential Leaders Series, we bring together individuals of all ages and with diverse perspectives to encourage them to celebrate their common humanity, lead with curiosity, listen in order to understand, and put their ideas into action.

As we look toward the future, we will expand our partnerships and further the reach of our programming, while embarking on a modernization and expansion of the Clinton Center. It will include a new Hillary Rodham Clinton wing that will be the definitive source for understanding history through the lens of Secretary Clinton’s experience and decision-making, the communities and coalitions she’s built, and countless lives she’s changed. It will also house her extensive archival collection. We will enhance President Clinton’s and the Administration’s exhibitions with upgraded state-of-the-art technology to create a more immersive visitor experience. And new layers of reflection from President Clinton, key advisors, and other voices will further contextualize the Administration’s decision making and policies, and their impact on contemporary issues. The expansion will also include new inviting spaces — both inside and in the Clinton Presidential Park — to enhance our capacity to foster dialogue and build community.

The Clinton Center is more than a building. It’s a promise that we, together, can make better tomorrows. It’s a hub of opportunity. It’s a global beacon for next-generation leadership in public service, philanthropy, civic engagement, and social impact. I am energized about our future and deeply inspired to continue “Putting People First”!

2024: Leadership, Citizenship, and Service

The Clinton Presidential Center celebrated big milestones in 2024, from welcoming 38 new U.S. citizens at a naturalization ceremony to marking the 25th anniversary of NATO's expansion. The Presidential Leadership Scholars program united diverse leaders, while the Clinton Center's public programs brought together influential voices across various fields and its special exhibitions offered cultural experiences for visitors of all ages.

For 20 years, the Clinton Center has welcomed visitors from around the world to learn about President Clinton's lifetime commitment to advancing opportunity, instilling responsibility, and creating community.

Report Reveals $4.9 Billion in Economic Growth

The Little Rock Regional Chamber of Commerce commissioned an independent evaluation and analysis of the Clinton Center’s 20-year economic and societal impact. It found the Clinton Center has contributed significantly to the economy through its direct investment and catalytic effect on private development. The economy of the downtown areas of Little Rock and North Little Rock has expanded by nearly $4.9 billion over the past 20 years. It also highlighted significant growth in tourism, arts and culture, placemaking, education, sustainability, and public service, underscoring the Center’s lasting influence on the community.

Clinton Center Welcomes 38 New Citizens

The naturalization ceremony at the Clinton Center celebrated 38 new U.S. citizens, where President Clinton reflected on the nation’s rich history and the vital role immigrants have played in shaping America. Joined by Congressman French Hill, and officials from the U.S. District Court and U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services, the event honored the power of diversity. The Clinton Presidential Library also offers citizenship preparation courses, empowering individuals to take the next step in becoming engaged citizens.

Presidential Leadership Scholars Launches Ninth Cohort

The Presidential Leadership Scholars program, launched ten years ago by Presidents Bill Clinton and George W. Bush, unites diverse, experienced leaders from all backgrounds. Since then, over 530 Scholars have placed collaboration at the forefront of leadership across health care, government, business, and beyond. In 2024, 60 new leaders from across the country joined the program’s ninth cohort. By drawing on their unique experiences, these Scholars have fostered positive change and helped shape the future in their communities and industries.

Student Presidential Leaders Series Inspires Arkansas Teens to Ignite Change

The Clinton Center welcomed its newest class of Student Presidential Leaders in 2024 — an energetic group of Arkansas high school students eager to create change. Over the year-long program, they honed their leadership skills, embraced inclusivity and respectful dialogue, and actively engaged in civic life. By developing community action plans, they addressed local needs and built a network of changemakers committed to making a meaningful difference in their communities.

High school students practice leadership and collaboration skills learned through the Clinton Center’s Student Presidential Leaders Series.

Public Programs Inspire Thousands

Public programs at the Clinton Center drew 12,500 attendees in 2024 and featured influential speakers from diverse fields: Michigan Governor Gretchen Whitmer shared invaluable leadership lessons; Luis A. Miranda, Jr. celebrated how Latino culture influences America; former Washington Post Executive Editor Martin Baron explored the evolving news industry; Arlo Washington, featured in Oscar-nominated documentary, “The Barber of Little Rock,” discussed the lasting impact of Clinton-era economic policies; and Secretary Clinton joined Archivist of the United States Colleen Shogan to examine how presidential libraries support democracy.

Clinton School of Public Service at the University of Arkansas

The Clinton School of Public Service was established by President Clinton 20 years ago as an action-oriented master’s degree program. In 2024, students launched a peer-to-peer mental health initiative to support female youth in rural Arkansas, researched digital literacy as a means of economic opportunity in Botswana’s Kgalagadi South district, and conducted a policy analysis for a global nonprofit aimed at improving education and expanding economic opportunity across the U.S. and more than 80 countries. 33 students graduated with their Master of Public Service degree from the Clinton School in 2024.

Governor Gretchen Whitmer joins Clinton Foundation Executive Director Stephanie Streett for an engaging conversation on lessons in resilience.

Project 42 Marks NATO Expansion, End of War in Kosovo, and Other Major Administration Milestones

The Clinton Center and Project 42 commemorated the 25th anniversary of two significant foreign policy milestones: the expansion of NATO to include the Czech Republic, Poland, and Hungary, and the successful NATO air campaign to end the war in Kosovo. President Clinton traveled with a delegation to Prague and through a series of events, explored the Clinton Administration’s instrumental leadership in leveraging U.S. strength and alliances to promote peace worldwide. Project 42 and the Clinton Center continued to engage alumni and highlight the enduring record of the administration, including the launch of the Clinton Presidential Research Fellowship, by hosting an alumni reunion during the Democratic National Convention in Chicago, Illinois, and convening a National Security Symposium in Washington, DC.

Ideas Matter Scholarship Winner Champions Youth Empowerment

Student Arianna Williams was awarded a college scholarship for her winning essay describing her passionate commitment to improve her community. In her essay, Williams wrote, “As we strive to build more inclusive, just societies, it is important to obtain the energy and idealism of youth, empowering them to become active representatives of progress.” For over a decade, the contest has provided students a platform to share their innovative solutions to pressing challenges.

We are at a critical moment in our world. We must make the choice to see what's working, while also not looking away from human suffering. And we must always believe that tomorrow can be better.

— DR. CHELSEA CLINTON, CLINTON GLOBAL INITIATIVE 2024 ANNUAL MEETING

LETTER FROM OUR INTERIM CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER

Dear Reader,

I have had the privilege of working with the Clinton Foundation for the past 20 years — as executive director of its childhood obesity initiative, the Alliance for a Healthier Generation; as chief executive officer of the Clinton Global Initiative; as a board member; and now as interim chief executive officer. It has been a true honor to have been involved with the Clinton family and all of you for so many years, and I am deeply grateful for the opportunity.

This feels like an existential moment for our nation and for many in the global community. We wake up every morning to headlines of uncertainty and chaos, as new developments unfold with devastating real-world consequences. However, one thing I know with certainty is that the Clinton Foundation is prepared to meet this moment — and we showed how in 2024.

There is no question that we are faced with a difficult road ahead, but that has never stopped us before. Whether it was the Ebola crisis in Africa or the financial crisis here in the United States, the Clinton Foundation has always found a way to create partnerships — with individuals, corporations, philanthropies, and governments — to address big problems. And the people who support our work make this possible.

Amid rising challenges around the world, this work continues and we're grateful that you've chosen to be a part of it. On behalf of the Clinton family, our board of directors, and everyone at the Foundation, I thank you for supporting our programs and demonstrating a shared commitment to putting people first across the United States and around the world.

Thank you,

MOMENTS THAT INSPIRED ACTION

2024 brought strategic collaborations and powerful moments that inspired us to keep going. Initiatives like the Too Small to Fail playbook, which guided storytellers on how to communicate the impact of climate change on children's health, and events like Media that Motivates, which encouraged media to spotlight these issues, built momentum. Together, these efforts show that when we align across sectors, we create opportunities for others to get involved and make a lasting impact.

Maria Ressa, Nobel Peace Laureate and co-founder and CEO of Filipino news site, Rappler, makes a passionate plea at the CGI 2024 Annual Meeting to improve the information ecosystem through education, legislation, and choosing to share content that inspires.

◀ Moment of Collaboration: Too Small to Fail partnered with the FrameWorks Institute and Rockefeller Foundation to create a playbook for storytellers on how to frame the impact of climate change on children’s health. Secretary Clinton and Chelsea expanded on this work by hosting “Media that Motivates,” encouraging popular media to share stories that explore this topic.

▶ Moment of Awareness: At the CGI 2024 Annual Meeting, Prince Harry, The Duke of Sussex, launched a new CGI Commitment to Action through The Archewell Foundation’s Parents’ Network to help protect children from the harmful effects of social media.

◀ Moment of Recognition: President Clinton traveled to Prague to mark the 25th anniversary of the Czech Republic, Poland, and Hungary joining NATO, which helped create a more peaceful, democratic Europe. In his keynote, he reflected upon his early support for NATO’s expansion at the time, as well as the continued importance of NATO and maintaining our global alliances.

▶ Moment of History: The Clinton Center’s permanent exhibitions chronicle American history and culture at the turn of the 21st century. Visitors experience full-scale replicas of the Oval Office and Cabinet Room and original works of art, such as the Crystal Tree of Light crafted by American artist Dale Chihuly. This dazzling glass sculpture was created for the Millennium Celebration and is part of the permanent collection at the Clinton Presidential Center.

Moment of Reflection: In November, President Clinton released his memoir, “CITIZEN: My Life After the White House,” providing a detailed and moving account of his post-presidential years, including stories of the Clinton Foundation’s impact, the origin of the Clinton Global Initiative, key events of the 21st century, and the people who’ve inspired him to keep going.

Moment of Unity: At the CGI 2024 Annual Meeting, Yael Admi, co-founder of Women Wage Peace, and Reem Hajajreh, founder of Women of the Sun, discussed the historic partnership between their movements to promote a nonviolent resolution to conflict across the Middle East.

Moment of Celebration: Former colleagues and friends from the Clinton Administration and Foundation community reunited at the Clinton Center’s 20th anniversary celebration. Administration alumni joined “The West Wing” stars Dulé Hill, Richard Schiff, and Melissa Fitzgerald for a conversation about Hollywood moments and the real-world leadership that inspired the iconic show.

Moment of Leadership: At the CGI 2024 Annual Meeting, President Joe Biden received the Clinton Global Citizen Award for his “uncommon decency and goodness.” Chosen by President Clinton, Secretary Clinton, and Chelsea, the award recognizes individuals who embody global citizenship through their vision and leadership.

Since 2001, the Clinton Foundation has reached more than 500 million people globally through programs that develop leaders and accelerate solutions to our world's most pressing challenges.
